More Oats Grown For Grazing, Grain, Hay

Each year Alabama farmers are growing more oats because the crop fits in with their plans to produce more grain, hay and grazing.

J. C. Lowery, API extension agronomist, points out that oats may be grazed in the fall and winter. Then, in the spring, the farmer may choose whether he continue to graze the crop, combine it or cut it for hay.

To succeed with oats, Lowery suggests doing the following things: First, prepare a firm seedbed, say two and a half inches deep, and then sow the seeds in a heavy growth of crops or weeds should be broken and cleared several weeks before time to plant. Light soils that have been in a clean cultivated crop need little or no land preparation. The county agent should be consulted as to what kind of fertilizer to use. Try at seed with a good chemical dust and plant early.

Early maturing varieties are Fulcrum and Victor Grain. Late varieties are Red Rust Proof, Norton and 100 bushel. Early varieties of oats should be planted

New Sweet Potatoes Shipped To Market

New sweet potatoes from the 1948 crop have been shipped to market from several points in Alabama. A. W. Jones, API extension marketing specialist, says the quality of these sweet potatoes has created a strong demand for more than an available.

Sudden Changes

Sudden changes of feed are bad for brood sows, milk cows, laying hens and fattening cattle. Even switching from one batch of hay to another has been known to cause trouble. Make all changes gradually.

Seed Production Increases In State

Seed production has rapidly increased within recent years to become Alabama's third most important cash crop. Last year more than 19,000,000 pounds of legume seed were harvested. The seed crops were planted on the farms where good use of harvesting machinery could be made.

WATER IN EGGS SELLS AT $1.50 PER GALLON

Have you ever seen a chicken turn water into money? John Dwyer, extension poultryman says that an egg is 67 per cent water. This water is worth $1.50 per gallon when eggs are sold at 50 cents a dozen—enough for providing a constant supply of clean, fresh water for poultry.

because late varieties tend to lodge. However, late varieties could be combined without very much trouble.

Use a grain drill for best planting results. Oats may be planted between cotton or corn rows with a three row drill, or a key-crocker distributor. Or they may be broadcast and covered by disking or plowing. "Rolling or cultipacking helps to make a firm seedbed," Lowery adds.

Mild Winters Promote Year Around Farming

Alabama's long growing season and mild winters have encouraged many farmers to adopt a year-around farm program.

In the past most farming has been done in the summer, but now winter farming is proving equally important, says S. R. Doughty, API extension soil conservationist. He says that winter farming not only adds to the farm income, but also conserves the soil. He explains that winter crops hold and improve the soil, support Alabama's increasing livestock industry and give balanced, year-around farm employment.

Legumes, small grains and grasses all have a place in the winter farming program. Reliable information regarding varieties, seeding dates and fertilizer rates are available from your county agent.

In addition to checking erosion, Doughty says that winter legumes add nitrogen to a organic matter to the soil. When this is done, yields of crop that follow are increased. Doughty urges farmers to do more winter farming which will make better and more efficient use of their land, equipment and labor. "When this is done, living standards and income will increase," he declares.

Get Ready To Plant Permanent Pastures

Permanent pastures, the biggest crop in Alabama, use about 3,000,000 acres of cropland and exceed the cotton acreage by a little over a third of a million acres. D. R. Harbor, API extension agronomist, says these figures show the importance of livestock on the Alabama industry. Harbor warns, however, that much of this acreage is not producing the maximum returns because of lack of good preparation, fertilization and management.

The Alabama experiment station, along with thousands of farmers who conducted demonstrations for the extension service, found that yields of beef, milk and pork can be increased with good pasture management. Harbor says now is the time to start a well managed pasture program. For success he recommends the following:

Use moist, fertile, bottom land and prepare it by turning and harrowing it to form a seed bed. Apply the right amount of lime, use right kind and amount of fertilizer; and use the right seed mixture and plant at the right time.

The local County Agent can give you complete information on increasing or establishing a permanent pasture for your farm.

Caked Fertilizer

Farmers who clean the air filter on their tractor and replace the oil once or twice daily when working under dusty conditions find that they save money on repair bills. Those who neglect to do this find that the dirt and sludge that collects in the bowl passes directly into the engine and causes excessive wear of the rings, pistons, and cylinder wall.

TRACTOR CARE

To save grain, sell all cockles when they weigh from two to three pounds except the ones to be used for breeding purposes.

PREVENT WORMY PIGS

Following a strict sanitation program is the best way to prevent wormy pigs. Also, use pigs with sodium fluoride. Experiments show that this drug will get 97 per cent of the worms in growing pigs. See your county agent for details on controlling worms in pigs.

CHECK SOW'S WEIGHT

A sow will lose an average of 45 pounds at farrowing time and another 45 pounds during the suckling period. These weight losses should be regained by the use of good feeding practices while she is carrying her next litter.

Auto Crashes Take 44 Lives In Alabama
Out of the 420 accidents investigated by the highway patrol last month, 44 persons were killed, according to Public Safety director, J. D. Mitchell. So far, 240 persons have died during the first six months of the year as a result of automobile accidents, and 1,838 people have suffered injuries. Those figures do not include accidents, deaths and injuries taking place within the city limits of towns that were investigated by local authorities. Mr. Mitchell says if these accidents were included in his report the figures would be much higher. June brought a slight increase in the number of deaths over the previous month. In May, out of 498 accidents, 43 were killed and 360 injured. The figure for June more than doubles that of the same period of last year when 20 were killed and 369 injured. 396 traffic mishaps.

Mitchell revealed further, that of the 44 deaths, 33 were white and 11 were negroes. Twenty-seven of the whites were males and eight negroes were males. Six were white women and three were negro women.

Those figures do not include accidents, deaths and injuries taking place within the city limits of towns that were investigated by local authorities. Mr. Mitchell says if these accidents were included in his report the figures would be much higher. June brought a slight increase in the number of deaths over the previous month. In May, out of 498 accidents, 43 were killed and 360 injured. The figure for June more than doubles that of the same period of last year when 20 were killed and 369 injured. 396 traffic mishaps.

Mitchell revealed further, that of the 44 deaths, 33 were white and 11 were negroes. Twenty-seven of the whites were males and eight negroes were males. Six were white women and three were negro women.

THE WINDY CORNER

By Fred S. Watson

Most of the early settlers in Coffee County were poor, but some owned slaves and brought the slaves with them to their new home. In 1850, there were 557 slaves in the county, by 1860 the number of slaves had increased to 1,417. There were only a few large slave holdings in Coffee County. In 1850, only twelve persons owned ten or more slaves while in 1860 this number had increased to forty-three.

As the country became more thickly settled, villages appeared, for the great distances to shopping centers and the condition of the roads made it imperative for the farmers to have means of getting supplies close at hand.

Some of the first settlers in the county located at what is now Clintonville. The community was first called Indigo Head, because there was so much Indigo growing there. One of the first villages created at Indigo Head in 1845. The village continued to grow until in 1850 the population was around two hundred. This figure could be matched only by Elba. It was a blow to the citizens of Indigo Head in 1852 when Elba instead of their community was selected to become the county seat.

The name of the town was changed from Indigo Head to Clintonville in 1859. Why the name was changed or why Clintonville was selected is not known. The town had prospered through the 1850's and on January 11, 1860 a post office was established there. John A. Fleming was the first postmaster.

During this period there existed in the town eight stores, a blacksmith shop and two churches.

Simmons and Yelverton organized the Simmons and Yelverton Co. which was the first store in Elba. For many years the post office was located in the store and Mr. Simmons acted as postmaster. They called the town Bentonville in honor of Colonel Thomas Hart Benton, senator from Missouri who won the favor of Alabama in the Creek War of 1813-14, serving in Alabama and commanding Ft. Montgomery.

With the growth of the town, the citizens thought the name should be changed to one more fitting for a thriving community. The name was changed in 1846 by placing different names in a hat and drawing. Each person present could submit one name. John B. Simmons, who had been reading a biography of Napoleon Bonaparte containing references to the island to which he was first banished, placed the name of Elba in the hat. Elba was drawn. In 1852, when by the act of the state legislature a voting precinct was created, the new name was officially recognized.

In 1852, after Elba was selected to be the county seat, the town was moved back from the river one-half mile north. This was the new location planned with the streets leading from the court house square. Most of the streets were named for the leading citizens. Claxton, Yelverton, Cordell, Adkison as well as Court and Polk streets run north and south while Davis, Collier, Simmons, Buford and Putnam streets run east and west. On May 7, 1853 an election was held and the people voted to incorporate the town.

In 1860, post offices were located at Geneva, Henderson's Store, Rocky Head, Haw Ridge and Victoria besides Clintonville and Elba. In the election of 1859 boxes were located at the following places: Elba, Danally, Coffee Corner, Tilton's Mill, Simut Eye, Haw Ridge, Grant, Wellborn, Geneva, Flat Creek, Old Town and Rushing.

(For more of the early history of Coffee County, watch next week's issue of the Windy Corner. Last week in listing sources of information, I forgot to mention the fact that, some of the information came from the Elba court house and Judge J. A. Carnley.)

You've got plenty to worry about when your doctor tells you to take it easy and not worry about anything.

THEY WAIT FOR THE ANDREWS TODAY

I drew today. I fully believe that most people could be won to Christ if only there were enough Andrews. Rarely have I had a person to repel me when I faithfully followed the leading of the Holy Spirit to speak to such person about Jesus.

Andrew did not rely upon his own resources. He went in the night of the Lord. He knew what Jesus had done for him. He yearned to see all men enjoy their blessing. He was a simple messenger—a voice.

And God gave him words—words that fell like good seed into fertile soil. So may we today introduce our friends to Jesus. Only let us remember this—we must first know him!

Good Crop Of Politicians

Coffee County's cotton crop, good as it is, is little better than Elba's crop of politicians. Four candidates have announced their intention of running for the office of mayor and nine are in the councilmen's race with two more qualified for Councilman-at-Large.

It is good to see such a large group of hopefuls. We have no objections to any of the officials, but believe more satisfaction results from the part of the officials and the citizens when the voters have a wide selection to choose from.

Being an official in the City of Elba offers nothing in the way of material reward. The salary it offers is much more than that set by the headcheese and trouble it brings with it. Civic pride and responsibility are the two driving cards for the offices. In the face of this we admire the 15 men who are civic-minded enough to seek these jobs knowing that they will probably be better off if they don't get them.

Service

Three weeks ago the Elba Lions Club requested Congressman George Andrews to aid them in securing better mail service between Elba and Enterprise to Kinston, Opp and points west. Last week they received a copy of a letter written to George from the Post Office Department saying the matter was already in the hands of the investigation department and as soon as the report was finished he would be notified as to whether the route could or could not be established. That's what we call service.

Of course we have no assurance that the route will be established. This will depend on the number of patrons to be served and the value of the service in comparison to the cost of the route. This will be determined by the field force who investigate such things for Uncle Sam. However, George did his part in getting the investigation started and we appreciate his effort.

If and when the route is established, and when the Kinston road is paved, people down that way can begin to feel like they are a part of Coffee County again. The fact that that end of the County has been neglected has not been overlooked by Fulton Clark, Eris Paul, H. B. Larkins, Governor Folsom and several others who have been trying to get this road paved. On several occasions, delegations from Elba headed by Mr. Clark have gone to Montgomery in an effort to get the project started. They have received full cooperation from the governor and from the highway department, and the contract is to be let early next month.

Band At Peanut Festival

The Elba band has been invited to participate in the Peanut Festival in Dothan again this year. Last year, with only about six months practice, as good as it was for the time they had been organized, the band couldn't be expected to be on a par with some of the older bands in the Wiregrass. Even so, they stole the show in Dothan with their overall uniforms and their fine style.

The band has developed into a fine musical organization in the past year. The concert they put on last week was amazing to most of us who hadn't heard them since school was out. They can be outstanding at the Peanut Festival or anywhere else this year, on their musical ability.

Last year they wore overalls because the band uniforms hadn't arrived at that time. It was a very good idea and fit in very well with the theme of things. In a Peanut show they were more colorful than the tailored uniforms. Mr. Strain is going to take the band to Dothan again, but we don't know which uniforms his plans call for. We hope he sees fit to use overalls again.

We knew the new phones would be an improvement, but we didn't know it would be as big as it is. On several occasions we have seen people holding the earpiece several inches away from their heads like it might be poison or something. This is often necessary, however, because the person on the other end has forgotten that they don't have to holler to be understood. Reckon we patrons will have to "change over" now that the phone company has done its part.

Elba's New Coach

Elba's new coach, Jim Reynolds, arrived in Elba this week and he and his family have moved into an apartment in the Miss Mable Brunson house. His family consists of Mrs. Reynolds and a four month old baby.

Coach Reynolds has been around and met most of the players, but says it's too early to hazard a guess on how Elba will fare with the tough schedule announced this week.

We were in Auburn at the time Coach Reynolds was a member of the football team there and had the pleasure of seeing him play on several occasions. If he can produce a team that will play as clean and as hard as he did, he won't have to worry about what kind of schedule he has to play.

Coach Hause has accepted a position in Perry, Florida. He has made a host of friends who regret to see him and his family leave, but are glad to see him take a job that seems to offer a pleasant future, and wish him the best of luck.

City Cousins

The other day Dorothy Dix got a letter that had absolutely nothing to do with love, marriage or table manners. It was a pip and we are sure, will be fully appreciated by the many farm families in the Wiregrass who have "city cousins". Just in case some of the city cousins who are moochers failed to see this letter, we are quoting part of it.

"The season is at hand again when we, who get our living by tilling the soil, are descended upon by our city cousins who visit us once a year at harvest time. The rest of the year when there is ground to be prepared plating to be done, weeds to be killed, heat and dust to be endured, no cousins are in sight. But as the fruit and vegetables begin to ripen our relatives appear on the scene with all sorts of cartons, boxes and pans that they have brought along in their cars."

No need to go further. You get the point. This letter, we believe, came from some family in New York State, California or Nebraska. It couldn't have come from the Wiregrass, because if it had it would have mentioned another visit of the city cousins that would have identified the locale. We are referring to hog killing time. That is when the Wiregrass farm families are hit hardest by the moochers.

It is surprising how many relatives from town, friends and even casual acquaintances happen to drop by when hogs are being butchered and sausage are being made. They don't show up when peanuts are being dug or when cotton is being killed and they head for the country.

"Just happened to be passing along, just happened to have some empty pans in the back of the car—say, ain't that sausage you are making? Haven't had any real, honest-to-goodness country sausage in a long time. They sure are pretty. No, wouldn't think of taking one of your pans. Might lose it. Heh, heh Got some of my own right here. Thanks, we'll sho enjoy these."

When Christmas comes there'll be a post card for the donor of the sausage. That is, if more sausage hangs in the smoke house.

—The Dothan Eagle
If Editor Hall is his conscience won't permit him to bum a few sausage off his rural neighbors this fall, we suggest that every rural school solicit his paper for an ad on the program for their senior play; that every rural church offer him a chance to contribute to a building fund; and that each community select a committee to see that all news of local interest doesn't reach him in time to make the proper issue without working overtime. Then next year he can go prospecting for sausage, scuppernons or catfals worms with the best of the "City Cousins".

Even though the gal said "yes", it did not mean anything in the case of 295 Alabama couples last year. According to the State Health Department this many marriage licenses were bought and never used. We've always heard that changing one's mind is a right and a privilege, but it seems to us that between the judge and the preacher is a pretty funny place to exercise it.

An investigator from the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, while making a survey, asked a farm wife why she and her husband bought a truck when they didn't have a bathtub in the house. She replied with surprise, "Why you can't go to town in a bathtub."

You can't deliver soft drinks, bread, groceries and other items in a bathtub either, but it would be nice if you could. Bathtubs in the middle of the streets of Elba would't present nearly the problems the trucks do.

Li's Quiet

By MICHAEL TIFF

ARTHUR HARRIS—floods—convict escapes. The newspaper is just full of horrors everywhere. But nothing ever happens to us," sighed Mrs. Jenkins.

Mr. Jenkins studied the newspaper. "Here's a picture of this Bat Sebastian, escaped lifer. Face reminds me of someone."

"Why, Peter, that face doesn't show a spark of kindness."

They remained quiet, Martha in her ancient wicker rocker and Peter in his hunched chair. The paper lay on Mr. Jenkins' lap as he frowned.

Then she watched the sunset. Tomorrow she'd be doing the same thing. Then she watched the sunset. Tomorrow she'd be doing the same thing. Then she watched the sunset. Tomorrow she'd be doing the same thing.

"Nice evening, Mr. Brown," she said. "I don't know if it's a good one or not."

"Wouldn't you like to sit a bit?"

"Thank you, ma'am, but whenever I see a bush that needs trimming."

"Why don't you take life easy, Mr. Brown? It isn't as if you were a hired hand."

"I like to keep moving, get me?"

"You poor man, there's some in the kitchen," Mrs. Jenkins roared, gave her chambermaid a disapproving glance, and swept in. Mr. Brown ran up on the porch. He stood behind the sleeping Mr. Jenkins and extended his hand toward the paper. Mr. Jenkins stirred. Brown straightened up before he saw step to the rail. He stooped over, snipping the blades as two sleep-weighted eyes unlidded. Then the screen door creaked.

"Lemonade's nice and cold, Mr. Brown."

Interview

By
W. JOHN STEVENS

MISS ALICE DAVIDS sat in her office, marking the exercises of her high-school English classes. There was a timid tap on her door. The knob was turned gently and a face peeped in.

"Yes, Miss Hanson?"

Ruthmary Hanson's pretty little face peeped in. "Miss Davis," she said, "I'm awfully fresh, but as if my courage had been gathered up, 'May I ask you a personal question?'"

Alice Davis smiled. "Why yes, Ruthmary, but I can't promise to answer."

3 Minute Fiction

The words began bubbling out. "Miss Davis, I know you'll think I'm awfully fresh, but as if my courage had been gathered up, 'May I ask you a personal question?'"

Alice Davis smiled. "Why yes, Ruthmary, but I can't promise to answer."

New Car Fend Burns

For a long time Angel Flores, of Silver City, New Mexico, had wanted a new car. From his earnings as a miner he saved a few hundred dollars. A compensation check for a leg fracture in a mine accident helped a lot.

When he last took the money from a hiding place in a wall cupboard he counted $2,500. He was ready to shop for a new car. That night a fire broke out in an apartment building next door and spread to Flores home. The money was burned.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to the people who were so kind and thoughtful to us during our recent bereavement. It is a rather odd question, but I don't mind answering it. Not a true understanding girl like you. I like teaching very much, Ruthmary."

"Ruthmary," Miss Davis interrupted, "you and I have always been pretty good friends, haven't we?"

"Yes, yes," she gulped.

"If I tell you, will you promise to keep it a secret?"

"Oh, yes, Miss Davis, I won't tell a soul, honest I won't. I just had to know for..."

"I don't have to tell, Ruthmary. You must have a good reason. It's a rather odd question, but I don't mind answering it. Not a true understanding girl like you. I like teaching very much, Ruthmary."

When Harry Charleville, ten, of St. Louis, became wedged between some bridge girders, he wanted police to cut the girders away.

However the officers had other ideas. Taking off his trousers before a crowd of spectators, the policeman soaped Harry's body. The boy was free—and embarrassed in a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. English To Move To Pretty Suburban Home

Mr. and Mrs. Harold English are busy completing arrangements for moving into the attractive suburban home which they recently purchased from Mrs. Carlton Lightner. It is located about two miles from Elba on the east side of the old Samson highway.

There is quite a lengthy history connected with the building under the Bibb Graves administration, under the guiding hand of W. M. Brunson, a rehabilitation camp for down and nearly out young farmers was established on the old Dan Knight place, where some 400 young farmers were in training to fill them to take charge of small farms that were to be given them by Uncle Sam. It was the first project of this kind in the United States and its success was more or less limited.

Two officials in the institution prevailed upon the powers that were to build two modern homes across the road from the camp, which the officials expected to live in. But for some reason or other, they never lived in them. The program was taken over by the Farm Security Administration, which eventually sold one of the houses to Cecil Bowden, and the other to Carlton Lightner, Mr. Bowden and his family are living in their home and as soon as Mr. English can get material to finish his small home, and his family will move into the other.
